Thematic Apperception Test (TAT) is a projective psychological test developed in the 1930s by Henry A. Murray and Christiana D. Morgan. It consists of 20 different cards containing ambiguous pictures which are presented to the subject for interpretation. The test is meant to be administered in an interpersonal setting and is used to measure personality traits and attitudes developed by Leopold Bellak and Sonya Sorel Bellak. It was first published in 1949 and is based on the Thematic Apperception Test (TAT).

The Thematic Apperception Test (TAT) is a projective test used to assess personality traits. It involves presenting ambiguous images to subjects and asking them to create stories about what is happening in the images. These stories are then analyzed to gain insights into the subject's personality. The TAT has been widely used for both children and adults to assess their perception of interpersonal relationships.
